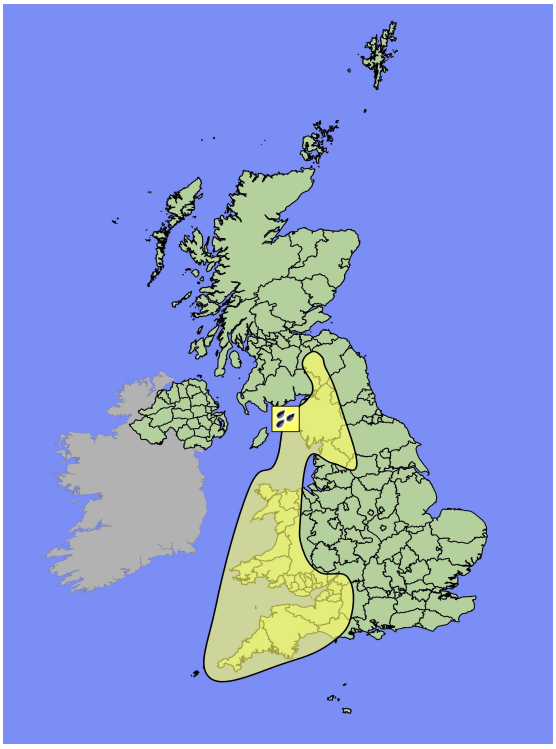
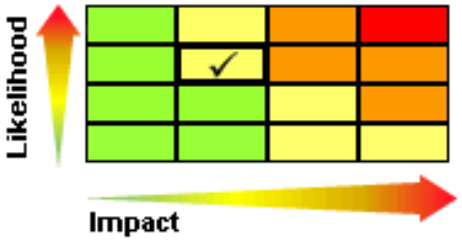
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A particularly deep area of low pressure developing over the Atlantic is expected to lie near Iceland by Saturday morning. The associated frontal system will move east across the UK during Friday night and Saturday, bringing with it another spell of wet weather, accompanied by generally very windy conditions. Rainfall totals of 15-25 mm are expected fairly widely within the warning area during this period, with locally 40-50 mm over prone southwest facing upslopes.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Sat, 29th Dec 2012 until 14:00 on Sat, 29th Dec 2012

A period of rain, heavy at times, will move slowly eastwards across the UK during Friday night and Saturday. Western regions can expect a period of persistent heavy rain, particularly over high ground, and the public should be aware of possible disruption due to localised flooding.
